DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This 2½ story, 3 bay, Flemish Common bond brick and stucco residence features random stone detailing. Rectangular metal casement windows with 2 vertical rows of 4 lights and brick header sills define the facade.

A left offset gabled projection in the left bay accommodated the round-headed wooden entrance behind an aluminum and glass storm door. A stone door surround merges with random stone facing in the mid and lower sections of the 1st story. A brick header string course defines the transition from the stucco/stone 1st story to the brick 2nd story.

A central casement window fills the 2nd story. The surrounding facade is accented by randomly placed stone blocks. Two uneven vertical rows flank the window; others join the side building walls. A fascia cornice with return finishes the gable roof.

Random stone detailing appears in the high brick chimney located to the left of the recessed bay. The first story section is faced by coursed rubble stone; The upper stories are faced in brick with random stone.

Two casement window grouping with wide and narrow flanking brickwork and flat arch stone lintels fill the stucco first story of the recessed right section.

A metal mullion separates the 2 left casement windows flanked by sidelights and capped by 6 horizontal lights. The right window contains a single casement window flanked by sidelights and capped by 4 transom lights.

In the 2nd story are 2 identical single casement windows with brick stretcher lintels. A louvered, rectangular opening with a brick header sill and brick stretcher lintel ventilates the uppermost story. A fascia cornice with return finishes the facade.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Variations in material and the placement of the offset gable modify the appearance of houses like 3410 Dennlyn Avenue. There are several examples of this pre-1950's vernacular style in Ashburton.
